KOREAN INTELLECTUALS' VIEW OF U.S.

Seoul KYONGHYANG SINMUN in English 26 April 1986

[Text]

The absolute majority of Korean people have pro-American sentiments. The attitudes of Korean elite groups and intellectuals toward the U.S. is not necessarily always affectionate, but generally so. Temporarily, there is an increase of critical feeling.

In their attitude toward the U.S., Korea's elite and intellectual groups may be classified into the following four types: the first group consists of people who always support the U.S. and think that announcements of the U.S. government and the American press is always right. These are the people who believe that the destiny of Korea is in the hands of the U.S. They may be those who have received, or are receiving, benefits from the U.S., privately or publicly.

A considerable segment of this group consists of people who support and defend the U.S. as if they were taking out an insurance policy. They are the men who believe that if and when an incident like the Vietnam debacle occurs in Korea, the evacuating American army helicopters might at least give them a lift.

Second, there is a group of people who always dislike the U.S. no matter what the U.S. does for Korea. They believe that the U.S. was the cause of all kinds of tragedies suffered by our nation, including the division of our land. They never vary their opposition to the U.S., regardless of overtures by the U.S. Embassy. They are people with many backgrounds, or have connections with various radical ideologies.

Third, the moderate nationalist force may be counted as another group. Usually, they are pro-American, but become critical when the U.S. interferes in internal affairs of Korea or takes selfish actions against Korea. They are well aware of the fact that the U.S. has provided important assistance to Korea for national security and lots of help for elevating Korea's international position. At the same time, they think that the ties of Korean-American cooperation do not profit Korea alone, but are to the advantage of the U.S., as well.

Therefore, when the U.S. government or the American press thinks that Korean-American cooperation exists purely for the interests of Korea, and when the U.S. tries to behave as "a big brother" in regard to internal affairs of Korea, they develop critical feelings because of their national pride.

Fourth is the radical democratic force. The term "radical" here means the extreme nationalist way of thinking, which at times shows a radical tendency. Ordinarily, they assume an anti-American attitude, but take a pro-American posture when the U.S. government and people interfere in internal affairs of Korea.

If the U.S. government and people wish to keep Korea's elite and intellectual groups friendly toward the U.S., they should consider these groups.

The political condition in Korea has turned very delicate, recently. The U.S. government, Congress and media have made various remarks and taken several actions on Korea. We believe that the time has come for the U.S. to reflect on whether such remarks and actions promote a good impression of the U.S. among the moderate, nationalist forces of Korea, who make up the lion's share of the elite and intellectual groups, for more positive evolution of the Korea-U.S. relationship.

PARTIES URGED TO SAFEGUARD PEOPLE'S BASIC RIGHTS

[Editorial: "Task for Constitutional Change"]

[Text] The government and the ruling Democratic Justice Party are bracing themselves up in preparations for discussing the issue of constitutional amendment, apparently to preempt the major opposition New Korea Democratic Party which has thus far strenuously campaigned for the rewriting of the basic law to restore direct presidential election.

The government announced the formation of a 40-member presidential committee to conduct research of constitutional systems Thursday. At the same time, the ruling party held the inaugural meeting of its own constitution committee with a bid to submit its version for constitutional revision to the National Assembly's regular session due to open in September.

With these moves, the government camp has made clear its posture to realize a constitutional amendment as early as possible, during the tenure of the incumbent president, thereby removing a major obstacle in the pursuit of agreement with the opposition camp over the timing of changing the basic law.

There is only about one and half years left to amend the constitution before President Chon Tu-hwan's 7-year term expires in February 1988.

Accordingly, the overriding and most urgent task for the rival political forces to seek constitutional revision and break through the protracted political impasse is to sit down at the conference table for a candid dialogue in seeking a "grand compromise" over the knotty constitutional problem.

The debate on the constitutional change is expected to be focused on the form of government and its power structure and thus the means for electing the nation's future presidents -- by direct popular voting or indirect voting.

But then, there is another crucial question concerning democratization: That is, the formula of guaranteeing the people's basic rights including freedom of speech, press and association.

Noteworthy in this regard was a recent statement by Stephen Carninal Kim Su-hwan, who noted that the guaranteeing of free press and speech is more important than constitutional change in the realization of democracy.

To this end, in the course of rewriting the Constitution, due efforts should also be made to safeguard and enhance those basic rights of the people by devising appropriate provisions in the basic law.

DJP OFFICIAL DISCUSSES LIBERALIZATION, DEMOCRATIZATION

OW140939 Tokyo KYODO in English 0900 GMT 14 May 86

[Text] Tokyo, 14 May KYODO -- A high official of South Korea's ruling party said here Wednesday political stability is a prerequisite for continuing liberalization and democratization of his country.

Yi Chong-yul, deputy chairman of the Democratic Justice Party's policy committee, made the comment while giving a speech on political developments in South Korea at the Foreign Correspondents' Club of Japan in Tokyo.

Giving his view of the current political situation in South Korea, Yi noted liberalization trends taking place in the country, and enumerated the major tasks his party plans to accomplish.

Yi sees the current political situation in South Korea as being in a state of "dynamic stability," since, in his words, "elements of change and growth have been gradually accommodated."

He went on to say that "the trend of liberalization is now under way in almost every realm of Korean society," and pointed out that restrictions placed on the people by the government of assassinated President Pak Chong-hui -- such as a midnight curfew, restrictions on overseas travel, and a police presence on college campuses -- have been removed.

Looking to the future, Yi said "the next few years will be another period of great transition," and reiterated the South Korean Government's viewpoint that three difficult tasks have to be accomplished -- the peaceful transfer of power in 1988, the successful completion of the 1988 Seoul Olympics, and continued economic growth and stability.

During the question and answer period, Yi defended South Korea's current indirect presidential election system by pointing out that during the years when there were direct presidential elections, the government party consistently won them, and the losing candidates, including leading dissident Kim Tae-chung, refused to accept the results.

However, he said President Chon Tu-hwan has told the leaders of the three major parties he would not be opposed to a revision of South Korea's constitution, "if the government and opposition parties reach an agreement on the issue at the national assembly."

On the subject of anti-American student radicalism, Yi revealed for the first time that the student radicals who occupied his party's headquarters wrote many anti-American slogans on the walls of the building.

However, Yi said he does not see student radicalism as a threat, since he believes their behavior will eventually isolate them from the rest of Korean society.

IMPORTANCE OF FREEDOM OF PRESS EMPHASIZED

[Editorial: "Flow of Information"]

[Text] One lively topic in our community these days is related to the vital need for a free flow of information or freedom of the press in conjunction with the mounting concern about the nation's democratization.

Since last month, there has been a lingering question over what was alleged a "biased and unfair" news presentation by the state-run Korean Broadcasting System, highlighting sporadic yet persistent civic moves against paying subscription fees to the nationwide television network -- a situation that promoted the government and the ruling party to be engaged in mapping out remedial steps.

In this connection, the opposition party recently came up with a position paper on the restoration of freedom of the press, calling for, among other points, the repeal of the existing basic press law, the revival of private-run broadcasting stations and the stationing of news correspondents of daily newspapers at provincial areas, which has been banned for the past 5 years or so.

Then, a prominent religious leader made a resounding statement last week underscoring the crucial role of the basic press, which he said is more important than constitutional amendment itself in pursuit of democratization and is a prerequisite to other civil liberties, including freedom of religion.

His remarks were essentially referring to the widely known fundamentals of democracy. Yet, the statement has given rise to a renewed debate -- this time, more or less in public -- on the need for a free press, reflecting our realities which are undeniably short of fully meeting the constitutional provision on freedom of the press.

It may be presumed that the Catholic leader was pointing to the vital role of free press in mustering public wishes and insight about the rewriting of the Constitution and thus implementing the revised basic law, once achieved, with little friction.

At any rate, it is needless to elaborate that freedom of the press is fundamental and crucial in enhancing the nation's progress, including political development, and that its attributes inherently involve a free flow of information and opinion, along with unbiased and truthful reporting.

Accordingly, it is hoped once again that acute efforts be made to better guarantee freedom of the press and other basic civil rights in the course of undertaking a constitutional amendment, which has thus far been focused on the form of the government's power structure and means of presidential election.

CURRENT SITUATION DISCUSSED--No Tae-u, chairman of the ruling Democratic Justice Party, paid a call on Stephen Cardinal Kim Su-hwan at Myong-dong Cathedral yesterday to discuss the overall situation of the nation, a party spokesman said. The spokesman only said that No and the cardinal discussed pending questions extensively for about an hour, from 11 am. The Catholic primate of Korea recently drew attention by asking radical students to give up leftist ideas and a militant attitude. The spokesman quoted No as telling party officers that "We (No and Kim) broadened the scope of our mutual understanding of the current situation." CHON INSTRUCTS 'BOLD' DISPOSAL OF DECLINING INDUSTRIES

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan asked the economic administration in a monthly briefing session yesterday to boldly dispose of declining industries.

The president was referring to the merger and sale of debt-ridden business firms currently conducted by the government.

He told the economic officials and businessmen, "All gains from the decline in oil prices and international interest rates should be reinvested to raise the quality of products, rationalize industrial management and improve energy-using facilities."

The economic session was held at the government office building in Kwachon, Kyonggi-do.

"We must build a firm foundation for the self-reliant growth of our economy, taking full advantage of the current favorable economic situation," Chons said.

The businesses were told to diversify their export markets and increase the import substitution of spare parts and capital goods, making the best use of the current surge of the yen against the U.S. dollar and declining international interest rates.

The President said that all relevant ministries should pool their efforts to seek continued price stability in the face of the currently favorable external circumstances.

He emphasized that any cause for price rise, including real estate speculation, must be eliminated to the core, under any circumstances.

Chon said that the nation should achieve the modernization of the industrial structure and technological renovation through the execution of the sixth five-year economic development program starting next year.

The president then called for a broad participation by experts from all walks of life in carrying out the sixth development plan.

CANADA'S MULRONEY DISCUSSES TRADE IMBALANCE, SECURITY

SK150647 Seoul YONHAP in English 0617 GMT 15 May 86

[Text] Seoul, 15 May (YONHAP) -- Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney said Thursday concerted efforts should be made to rectify the trade imbalance between Korea and Canada and to battle protectionism world-wide.

To correct the trade imbalance favoring Korea, Mulroney said, Korea should lower the tariff rate on imported lumber, coal and agricultural products such as wheat and alfalfa.

Korea exported about 1.23 billion U.S. dollars worth of commodities to Canada in 1985 and imported about 630 million dollars worth, resulting in a trade surplus of 599 million dollars.

In a press conference at the Korea press center here, Mulroney expressed the hope that Korea will buy another Candu nuclear reactor from his country.

"If Korea imports another Candu reactor from Canada, it will be the best choice for the nation because the reactor is excellent in terms of safety and credibility," he said.

Mulroney also said he told Korean President Chon Tu-hwan that he hopes Korea will show its allies progress toward democratization through the peaceful transfer of power.

The Canadian prime minister left here for home later Wednesday, winding up his 4-day official visit to Korea. Before coming here, Mulroney visited China and Japan, where he attended the Tokyo economic summit of the leaders of the seven leading Western industrialized countries.

Regarding the security situation on the Korean peninsula, Mulroney said, "Canada, as a nation that dispatched 27,000 troops to Korea during the Korean War, well perceives that the stability and peace on the peninsula is linked directly with the world peace."

In addition, Mulroney said that Canada will continuously receive immigrants, who have contributed to the growth and wealth of Canada.

He also said that he got the impression while in Beijing that China wants to reduce tensions on the Korean peninsula and to normalize relations with neighboring countries.

While in Seoul, the Canadian leader met with President Chon Tu-hwan, Prime Minister No Sin-yong and other government and opposition leaders, and toured the truce village of Panmunjom dividing south and north Korea.

NKDP INVITES JSP FOR VISIT--Seoul, 19 May KYODO -- The New Korea Democratic Party (NKDP) sent an invitation to the Japan Socialist Party (JSP) Monday for a visit to Seoul for talks with leaders of the NKDP, South Korea's largest opposition force. JSP Chairman Masashi Ishibashi and eight other members have planned to visit Seoul May 27-29. But it remains to be seen if the South Korean Embassy in Tokyo will issue visas to the JSP delegates as the JSP recognizes North Korea but not South Korea. Kim Yong-sam, an NKDP adviser, invited Ishibashi to visit Seoul during their talks in Tokyo last October. Government sources said South Korea will accept JSP officials if they are invited by the speaker of the National Assembly. Government and NKDP officials are discussing if this is possible, the sources added. [Text] [Tokyo KYODO in English 1012 GMT 19 May 86] /12640

MINISTER URGES AUSTRALIA TO LIFT IMPORT BARRIERS

SK161352 Seoul YONHAP in English 1251 GMT 16 May 86

[Text] Seoul, 16 May (YONHAP) -- South Korean Trade and Industry Minister Kum Chin-ho has urged Australia to lift import restrictions, such as anti-dumping measures and tariff quotas on Korean-made products to correct chronic trade imbalance favoring Australia, according to a report from Sydney to the Korean ministry Friday.

Kum made the remarks in a speech to some 200 Australian business leaders, who attended a meeting of the Australia-Korea Business Cooperation Council in Sydney, the report said.

In the speech, the minister pointed out, "there is growing talk among Korean businessmen of switching our import sources of various raw materials from Australia to other countries."

Kum noted that cumulative deficit in Korea's trade with Australia since 1975 amounts to almost 5 billion U.S. dollars worth, adding it provokes considerable criticism from his country's media and business circles.

Noting that trade barriers imposed by Australia are especially effective in keeping Korean-made textiles, radial tires, steel products, chemicals, automobiles, electric and electronic products, [as received] he strongly called on Australia to take steps to rectify the trade imbalance.

The Korean minister embarked on his 12-day trip to Australia and New Zealand on 11 May for talks on promoting bilateral trade with his counterparts in the two countries.

MEASURES FOR ECONOMIC TIES WITH EUROPE

[Editorial: "Economic Ties With Europe"]

[Text] It is appropriate that government authorities have recently taken comprehensive measures to positively explore the European market.

Notable in the latest steps, designed to promote economic ties with Europe, are efforts to shift the import sources of machinery and components from Japan to Europe, as well as the support of joint ventures with European countries.

Drawing particular attention are bids to dispatch a large-scale trade mission to Europe in September and 15 small-scale business delegations there within the year.

These moves to advance into Europe are among several follow-up steps related to President Chon Tu- hwan's recent visit to four European countries, which has served to enhance the cooperative climate between Korea and the European nations.

It is noteworthy that more than 30 items have been selected to diversify their import sources from Japan to Europe, in light of the ever-growing trade deficit with Japan.

Indeed alarming is the fact that the trade deficit with Japan last month hit a record monthly high of $565 million, bringing the total deficit with the neighboring country during the first four months of this year to $1,661 million, more than half of the $3,017 million registered for the whole of last year, in the wake of the sustained rally of the Japanese yen since late last year.

Another encouraging development is that specific European partners seeking joint ventures with Korean firms have emerged with plans to invest in third countries in the sector of manufacturing machinery parts and components of which the nation's imports are highly dependent on Japan.

In fact, the nation's trade with Europe has been still meager in volume, as compared with our trade with Japan and the United States. In addition, Korean investments thus far made in Europe, numbering a little more than 40 cases, amount to only $10 million, with most cases in the non-manufacturing fields.

On the other hand, European investments in Korea have steadily increased since the latter 1970s in manufacturing industries, including steel and nuclear power projects.

We should reflect on ourselves in our past negligence even in promoting the exports of products with comparative advantages and viability to Europe. It is also regrettable that the promotion of exports to Europe and investments there have thus far proved to be more or less an empty slogan or a flash in the pan.

While both the growing trade deficit with Japan and the trade surplus with the United States constitute a grave issue, stepped-up efforts to explore the European market are expected to serve in breaking through a major obstacle in our economic advance abroad.

It is earnestly hoped that the projected trade missions will make substantive negotiations to seek balanced trade with each of the European countries, while striving to win the transfer of advanced technology from Europe into Korea.

MONTHLY TRADE DEFICIT WITH JAPAN--Seoul, 15 May KYODO -- South Korea posted a record monthly trade deficit with Japan of 570 million dollars in April, South Korea's economic planning board said Thursday. South Koreaa exported 369 million dollars worth of goods to Japan last month and imported 939 million dollars, producing a deficit more than double that of same month last year. The deficit presumably snowballed due to rising import cost of machineries and their parts, which South Korea uses to manufacture export goods, caused by the high yen. The machinery imports account for more than half of South Korea's total imports from Japan. South Korea's January-April deficit with Japan rose to 1.67 million dollars, or 55 percent of last year's total deficit in its trade with Japan. Observers here said the tendency to shift imports from Japan to other countries may grow further to lessen the dependence on Japan.

DAILY CARRIES ARTICLE ON SOCIALIST ECONOMIC MANAGEMENT

SK041004 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0907 GMT 4 May 86

[Text] Pyongyang, May 4 (KCNA)--Papers dedicated articles to the third anniversary of the publication of the work of dear Comrade Kim Chong'il "Let Us Advance Under the Banner of Marxism-Leninism and the Chuche Idea" on May 3, 1983.

NODONG SINMUN Saturday in a signed article says:

This work clarified the fundamental principle of the revolutionary struggle of the working class and the truth of the chuche idea and gave a comprehensive solution to theoretical and practical questions arising in the communist construction. The work serves as a powerful ideological and theoretical weapon in the Korean people's struggle for the accomplishment of the cause of chuche.

One of the theoretical questions expounded by Comrade Kim Chong-il in the work is the theory on the character of the socialist society and enforcement of all policies suited to it.

This theory carries weighty significance in steadily improving the socialist economic management in conformity with the demand of the developing reality.

The theoretical and practical question raised in realizing economic management suited to the character of the socialist society is, first of all, to properly combine the party political work with the economic organizing work.

Correct combination of the party political work with administration and economic work under the socialist system is to give priority to the party political work for economic organizing work and do the party political work for ensuring economic organizing work. The experience of socialist economic construction in Korea shows that proper maintenance and consolidation of these relations is the key to the success of economic work.

The theoretical and practical question in doing the economic management in conformity with the character of the socialist society is to put a main emphasis on political and moral incentive and properly combine material incentive with it.

All the ideas and theories of the Workers' Party of Korea on economic management are run through with the demand for making the political and moral incentive the most important means of putting the working people to activity and stimulating them to the production and construction.

This can be met mainly through the correct introduction of the cost-accounting system suited to the demand of the Taaen work system, communist form of economic management.

It is an important question in doing the economic management in conformity with the character of the socialist society to properly combine the unified and planned guidance of the state with the work of enhancing the role of every production and management unit, the paper emphasizes.

[Text] Pyongyang, May 14 (KCNA)--A scientific symposium was held Tuesday to mark the 20th anniversary of the publication of the classic work of the great leader President Kim Il-song "On Correctly Preserving the National Characteristics of the Korean Language" (May 14, 1966).

Present there was Kim Hwan, member of the political bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea.

The speakers emphasized that the work of President Kim Il-song showed a most straight path of the solution of the question of national language in the present era by comprehensively elucidating the essence of this question and points of principle arising in solving it.

President Kim Il-song, they said, specified that the question of national language in the present age is, in essence, to preserve its national characteristics. This idea is the ideological, theoretical and methodological compass for the solution of the question of national language in our era, they noted.

They said what is essential in solving the question of national language in our era by preserving the national characteristics of the language is to preserve the inherent words, because they most intensively represent the national characteristics of the language and have stronger resisting power to foreign languages than any other elements of the language, they added.

President Kim Il-song expounded what is also important in solving the question of national language in the present age, the question of preserving the national characteristics of the language, is to conduct this work in conformity with the specific features of the national language of each country and make it the work of the popular masses themselves, the speakers noted.

They said chuche must be established in linguistics, too, to systematically develop the Korean language and make the people feel national pride and honour in speaking it.

They pointed to the fact that the written and spoken languages of Korea are being developed and perfected today to suit the demand of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea under the wise leadership of the Workers' Party of Korea.

NODONG SINMUN and MINJU CHOSON carry articles under respective titles "Korean language is a superior one with national characteristics" and "language and national pride."

NODONG SINMUN CALLS FOR MAINTAINING CHAJUSONG

[Text] Pyongyang, May 16 (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today in an article titled "To Maintain Chajusong is Guarantee for National Independence and Prosperity" stresses that the ever more unscrupulous schemes of the U.S. imperialists to stamp out and obliterate the dignity of sovereign and independent states today call for more firmly maintaining Chajusong.

Noting that to maintain Chajusong is first of all a fundamental demand for achieving the independence of a country and defending national dignity, the author of the article says:

To uphold their dignity and honour, it is imperative for the national independent states to maintain a firm independent stand at any time and under whatever circumstances.

A nation with a strong faith in Chajusong will not submit to any threat or blackmail of imperialism but resolutely reject foreign interference and defend national independence.

Pointing out that to maintain Chajusong is also a guarantee for the eternal development, prosperity and grandeur of a nation, the article says:

It is a stand which must be held fast to without fail in the struggle for national prosperity to solve problems arising in the revolution and construction on the principle of self-reliance on one's own responsibility.

In particular, this problem has become a more pressing one today when the predatory policy of imperialism is being stepped up.

Today under the cloak of "aid" and "cooperation" the U.S. imperialists are making their way into new-born independent states to destroy their national economy.

To achieve development in all domains, political, economic and cultural, and lay the foundation of a dignified position in the international arena a nation should thoroughly apply the principle of Chajusong in the revolution and construction.

To maintain Chajusong is an indispensable precondition for resolutely upholding the revolutionary principle of the working class and achieving the sound development of a nation, the article notes, the stresses:

A nation with strong Chajusong will never step back even an inch from a revolutionary stand but advance in an indomitable spirit no matter what the cost may be.

We will hold aloft the banner of the chuche idea and firmly maintain the principle of Chajusong in the future, too, and thereby hasten the cause of socialism and communism, achieve the reunification of the country and the eternal prosperity of the nation.

KCNA REPORTS ON PROGRESS OF RICE TRANSPLANTING

[Text] Pyongyang, May 16 (KCNA)--Rice-transplanting has begun in the countryside of Korea.

Rice seedlings have been transplanted in thousands of hectares of paddy fields in a few days on the west coast areas such as the Yoldusamcholli, Yongchon and Chaeryong plains, which are known to be granaries, with an intensive mobilization of manpower and machines.

Rice-transplanting has been completed in over 4,000 hectares in north Pyongan Province.

Despite a long spell of unfavorable weather under the influence of the cold front, sturdy rice seedlings have been nursed through a scientific and technical control of seedling beds.

For rice-transplanting in right time, precedence was given to tilling and harrowing, with the result that thorough preparations were made for transplanting by machines.

In Korea rice-transplanting is an important process of farming which means a breakthrough in farming.

Various kinds of farm machines had been massively supplied to the countryside to carry out the vast work at a lightening speed. The rate of mechanisation in rice-transplanting will be increased this year with the supply of rice-transplanting machines jumping 40 percent above last year.

Now the construction of 18 objectives of the complex has entered the full-fledged stage.

The assembling of the buildings of six objects including roughing ground No 6 and oxygen plant have already been completed and the assembling of equipment inside these buildings has been carried out by over 50 percent.

The reconstruction and expansion project of furnace No 1 for increasing its cubature 1.2 times and equipping it with new technology was completed long ago and began producing molten iron.

Vigorous efforts are being made at the Hwanghae Iron and Steel Complex for making metallurgical equipment chuche-based and modernized, which involves the installing of a large oxygen plant and the expansion of furnaces, sintering ovens and the steel shop.

With the completion of remodelling of open hearth No 6, the fuel consumption per ton of steel has been cut 20 percent while the steel output jumped two times.

The expansion project of the Tanchon Magnesia Clinker Factory is also making headway at full steam.

Following the building of the bodies of all the planned 16 kilns, the constructors are pushing ahead at fast speed with the laying of bricks inside the bodies and the building of the crushing and sorting plant, the products storing ground, the general dust absorbing building, and so on.

Energetic endeavours are being made to create foundations of production equal to the attainment of the grand 10 long-range objectives of the socialist economic construction in the coal and ore mines including the Anju District coal mining complex, the Komdok general mining enterprise and the Musan mining complex and factories and enterprises of various other fields of the national economy.

SOLDIER-BUILDERS COMPLETE HYANGSAN, TONGAM LOCKGATES

[Text] Pyongyang, May 18 (KCNA)--Soldier-builders of the Korean People's Army have constructed in a short period the Hyangsan and Tongam lock gates, proud monumental structures of the Workers' Party age.

The Hyangsan lock gate is the first of its kind built across the river Chongchon.

The lock gate has a number of sluices, a power station and a fish route and the bridge on the dam extends hundreds of metres.

With the construction of the lock gate, it has become possible to harness the river Chongchon to protect the arable land in its basin from floods, solve the power problem in the Hyangsan area with the electricity produced by the lock gate power station and promote the conveniences in traffic, and the artificial lake will change the local scenery, rendering it more beautiful.

The Tongam lock gate on the river Taedong has been constructed in accordance with the far-reaching plan of the great leader President Kim Il-song to build a canal linking Nampo and Tokchon. The fifth lock gate from the Nampo barrage upstream, it is an all-embracing, modern one with locks capable of letting pass big and small ships, a broad road, a power station, etc.

It has also a fish route and moorages and the sluice gates are uniformly operated at the control tower.

With the construction of the Tongam lock gate, it has become possible to meet the growing demand for transportation more satisfactorily by carrying through the water the cement, coal and so forth produced in the Sunchon area and largely increase agricultural production by storing more irrigation water.

The landscape of the Taedong river basin will become more beautiful and Sunchon will completely change its looks as a city of industry and culture through the lock gate bridge materials and equipment will be transported to the construction sites of the Vinalon complex, the thermal power plant, and so forth in the Suncheon District and the lock gate power station will supply electric power to the construction sites and the populated areas.

The great leader President Kim Il-song and dear Comrade Kim Chong-il indicated the direction and ways for an early completion of the lock gates, solved all problems, big and small, arising in their construction, and highly praised the fast speed of the construction carried out without much publicity.

President Kim Il-song named the Hyangsan lock gate bridge and wrote "Hyangsan Bridge" in his own hand.

These lock gates, together with other ones, will greatly contribute to the economic development of the country and the improvement of the people's life.

The construction of one more lock gate, Hadan lock gate, is now progressing apace on the river Taedong.

[Text] Pyongyang, May 12 (KCNA)--The geological prospecting teams across the country have determined more than 50 new promising excavating sites over the last 6 years, according to data available at the Ministry of Resources Development.

Many of them are deposits of such valuable resources are coal, gold, copper, lead and so on. More than 40 objects have already been put into partial operation or are being developed.

New coal deposits which would last for centuries have been ascertained in Anju District on the west coast.

Deposits of ores of world level in content rate have been discovered in Chagang Province. Their excavation has already begun.

The prospecting teams have spotted in recent years various kinds of minerals of large economic value for the first time in the country.

An Chong-yong, vice-director of the underground resources survey department, said:

During the last few years the survey teams have spotted new mineral deposits of high content rate estimated at millions of tons to open a bright prospect of non-ferrous metal production.

New minerals greatly conducive to the development of chemical industry have also been discovered to be developed. Their deposits determined so far are estimated at hundreds of millions of tons.

Resources of cement rocks which can substitute for limestone and clay, the main raw materials of cement, have been discovered.

The vice-director said prospecting teams were planning to secure more than 10 new excavating sites this year and they were reporting renovatory successes on the threshold of the geological survey day which falls on May 15.

DAMMING OF LAST SECTION OF NAMPO DAM COMPLETED

SK191035 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1011 GMT 19 Apr 86

[Text] Pyongyang Apr 19 (KCNA)--The damming of the last section of the main dam, one of the most difficult projects in the construction of the Nampo barrage, a gigantic monumental edifice of the 1980's, was completed victoriously on April 18.

With the successful completion of this project, Nampo municipality and south Hwanghae province have been linked together by the dam and the water of the river Taedong which had flowed for millions of years has come to a standstill to bring into shape a large artificial lake.

Nine islands on the sea have either disappeared or come within the lake. And the water of the river Taedong will be channelled to north and south Hwanghae provinces and south Pyongan province, granaries on the west coast, and Nampo and Pyongyang municipalities, for a more sufficient supply of irrigation water and a convincing prospect has been opened for developing sea and land transport and fisheries, improving the people's life and rendering the looks of the country more beautiful.

The 8 kilometers long dam stretching on the west sea is a crystal of the wise guidance of the great leader President Kim Il-song and our party and the boundless loyalty of the soldiers of the heroic Korean People's Army and the entire people to the party and the leader and a proud product of the mighty independent national economy that our party has built with a hard struggle.

The main dam of the Nampo barrage which has been built with our wisdom, technique and strength is a proud creation of eternal value which will not be shaken under any natural condition.

The people's army soldiers, constructors and scientists are pulling their full weight on the successful completion of the Nampo barrage.

A railway, a motorway and sidewalks will run on this main dam and it has a fish route.

GRAPHITE BASE UNDER CONSTRUCTION--Pyongyang Apr 24 (KCNA)--The Hungsang mine under the south Hwanghae provincial mining administration is being built to be a leading graphite production base. Hungsang area is blessed with a large deposit of good-quality graphite. As the open cast mining is possible there, the construction of cutting sites needs not a large investment. When the construction is completed, it will be possible to fully meet the increasing domestic needs for graphite and export a large quantity of graphite every year. The builders there have completed the construction of an ore dressing plant in the main in a short period and finished the assembling of a system. They will complete the assembling of two systems in the future, the ore dressing capacity of each system being hundreds of thousands of tons. The construction of a drainage drying ground, crude ore transport facilities, repair and maintenance shop and heavy machine repair shop is progressing apace. RAILWAY STATIONS FOR MINING WORKERS--Pyongyang Apr 14 (KCNA)--Six new railway stations have made their appearance in a section between the work site to the residential quarters of the miners of the Musan mining complex, a leading ore production base of Korea. The section extends tens of ri from Chucho, the miners' housing estates, to Ousan. The stations stand at average intervals of 2.4 kilometers. The distance between some stations is

1.5 kilometers. The great leader president Kim Il-song a few years ago took a step for the construction of many houses for the miners in the area and, when a new "miners' city" took shape, he saw to it that railway stations were built for their commutation. In May 1984, dear comrade Kim Chong-il climbed the Cholsan hill more than 800 meters above sea level and showed deep loving care for the miners there, considerate of their commutation. He says that since its founding the Czechoslovak Communist Party, leading the working class and people of Czechoslovakia, liberated the country from the yoke of the vicious fascist rule, defended the gains of the revolution in the fierce struggle against the class enemies at home and abroad and firmly established an advanced, socialist system and converted Czechoslovakia into a solid industrial state.

Daily Greets Anniversary

[Text] Pyongyang, May 14 (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today carries an editorial article greeting the 65th anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovak Communist Party.

Noting that the founding of the Czechoslovak Communist Party was an important event of weighty significance in the history and the political life of the Czechoslovak people, the article says:

The 65 years of the CCP was 65 years of struggle and change in leading the revolution and construction to victory while consolidating the party organizationally and ideologically, cementing the unity and cohesion of the party and smashing the counter-revolutionary schemes of the imperialists and domestic reactionary forces.

Socialist construction in Czechoslovakia entered a new stage of development after the April plenary meeting of the CCP Central Committee held in 1969. And the Czechoslovak Communist Party has grown to be a powerful vanguard unit with a membership of 1,700,000.

The most valuable success of the CCP greeting its 65th birthday is the growth of the party.

All the successes made in Czechoslovakia are the shining fruition of the leadership of the Czechoslovak Communist Party led by respected Comrade Gustav Husak and creative endeavours of the Communist Party members and people, the article says, and continues:

The Communist Party members and working people of Czechoslovakia significantly greeted the 17th Congress of the CCP some time ago and are accelerating the revolution and construction with confidence and hope.

The CCP is energetically struggling for peace in Europe and the world.

It vigorously struggles against the moves of the U.S.-led imperialists to plunge the world into the holocaust of nuclear war and for peace and security in Europe, in particular, to turn Central Europe into a chemical weapon-free zone.

The members of the Workers' Party and working people of Korea rejoice over the successes achieved by the fraternal Czechoslovak Communist Party members and working people under the leadership of the Czechoslovak Communist Party as over their own and express firm solidarity with their righteous struggle.

The visit of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song to Czechoslovakia in 1984 and the visit of respected Comrade Gustav Husak to Korea in 1973 marked an epochal occasion in bringing the friendly and cooperative relations between the two parties and peoples to a new higher stage.

We sincerely wish the CCP members and Czechoslovak people greater success in the struggle to build a developed socialist society, upholding the decisions of the 17th Congress of the CCP.

N.KOREA/INTERNATIONAL COMMENTARY

DAILY DENOUNCES JAPAN'S DIPLOMACY TOWARDS MIDDLE EAST

SK150505 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0432 GMT 15 May 86

[Text] Pyongyang, May 15 (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON today, commenting on the babbling of the reactionary rulers of Japan that Japan should maintain her Middle East diplomacy in disregard of the "anti-terror statement" adopted at the Tokyo summit of Western countries, says that it discloses their crafty nature in all nakedness.

Noting that the Middle East countries are vehemently denouncing Nakasone as a faithful accomplice and promoter in working out the "anti-terror statement," the author of the commentary says:

Even before the ink of their signature to the "anti-terror statement" was dry the reactionary rulers of Japan made sheep's eye at the Middle East countries, prattling that the Middle East diplomacy should be "maintained" and Japan's "policy" toward the Middle East has not changed. How brazen-faced this is!

If the Middle East countries, indignant at the wicked behavior of Nakasone prohibit export of oil to Japan, the Japanese economy which depends upon this region for 75 percent of its oil import will go bankrupt.

Although the Japanese reactionaries are behaving as if they would maintain independence in politics, there can be no change in their policy of kowtowing to the U.S. imperialists as their subordinate ally.

The peoples of Middle East countries should watch every move of theirs, maintaining heightened vigilance against the crafty tricks of Nakasone.
